Thank you for supporting with Save the Children's Christmas Jumper Day. We raised £480 which the Government will double!

The UK Government today announced it will double all donations to Save the Children's annual Christmas Jumper Day campaign, on Thursday 8th December, in response to a worsening food crisis across drought-hit East Africa.

Since launching a decade ago, Save the Children's annual Christmas Jumper Day campaign has raised over £30 million for children in the UK and around the world, by calling on Brits across the country to wear their favourite Christmas Jumper and donate £2 to the charity.

Lord Tariq Ahmad of Wimbledon, Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office Minister, said:

“Women and children are facing a fight for survival in drought-hit East Africa. By signing up to Save the Children's Christmas Jumper Day appeal this year you can help to provide life-saving nutrition and treatment services to the children who need it most, as conditions in the region continue to deteriorate. All donations before March 1 will be match funded by the UK Government.” on the move.

“A choice between a drink of water or antibiotics is not a choice. No human should be in this position. It's not dignified, it's not safe, it's wrong.”
“With the opportunity to raise double the funds for children experiencing hunger in Kenya, this year there's even more reason to get involved in Save the Children's Christmas Jumper Day.”
